set forth in the following from a corre-spondent of the Gastight Journal, Mr. John Keeling, who seems to know whereof he writes: "The great and all important question is, can the meter at all times be elied on as a faithful and unerring arbitrator? I unhesitatingly say it can not, and, as a rule, the consumer always and, as a rule, the consumer always suffers for the shortcomings of the meter. By way of illustration, we will take a new, dry meter, test it in the usual way, let it run for six months, let it stand still for two months, and the great probability for two months, and the great probability is that it will be from five to ten per cent. It is that it will be from five to ten per cent. fast. This is due entirely to the diaphragms contracting. Another source of error: Suppose the tangent that governs

The ten year old bay horse, however, came in the winner, Rogers' entry second and Pyne's third. Time, 2.55%.
The old horse was the favorite before the ing establishment, whose consumption was very regular, and rated, with the use gelding in 2.54%.

The third heat was given to Rogers of my patent governor and pressure indi-cator, fifteen thousand feet per week, never varying three hundred feet. After being in this state for three mouths, the consumption went up to eighteen thouagain. Time, 2 53%.

The fourth heat, which was the quickes one run, was taken by Payne's gray horse in 2.50%.

The fifth heat was made in 2.55, and the J. T. Moore sand, which was detected the first week. sixth 3 02%. Rogers' gelding was second in the last three heats. The meter was tested, and proved twenty per cent last; snother meter brought us to All hands agree in saying that it was as the fifteen thousand.
